

One For the Road (Blue Collar Lovers Book 1)

Grace worked her fingers to the bone to run the best truck stop in the state. Keeping a friendly smile painted on her face, she made sure all her customers felt at home, got a good meal and was able to clean up before heading back out on the road. The one thing she never, ever did was date her customers. It made for bad business. But Mason wasn't he ordinary customer. The drop dead sexy trucker was unlike many of her regulars. Never disrespectful and always charming, Mason had a smile to die for and the body that made her dream of sin. Maybe this one time she should throw caution to the wind and take their harmless flirting a little further. Little did she know she was in for far more than One For the Road! EXCERPT: What'll it be, sugar? Grace Sloan had been asking that question of every trucker who stopped at her One For the Road truck stop for the past eight years. In all that time she'd never actually considered taking friendly banter any further with the men who frequented. Well, that was, until Mason Chambers strolled into the diner two-and-a-half years ago. The first time she saw him, Grace had actually sighed. It wasn't that he was all that handsome, but he had a rugged, work-roughened aura that was as masculine as it was damned sexy. Muscles roped his burly forearms where his shirtsleeves were rolled up to just below his elbows, and biceps bulged, threatening the fabric containing them. A smattering of dark chest hair the same color as the glossy dark hair on his head peeked out from the button-up shirt. His hair was cut military fashion but left a little long on top. Just long enough for a woman to run her fingers through and hold him to her. When you combined the sexy-as-hell looks with one of the most charming personalities to ever to walk in the diner--yeah, Mason was definitely the kind of sugar she wanted in her coffee. That wicked grin alone was enough to make her want to chuck her No dating the truckers rule right out the window. Especially when he turned that dimpled smile on her. Like right now. If I said I wanted you all wrapped up in a red ribbon with a big ol bow would I get slapped?
