

By the Numbers

The last thing Nathaniel, aka Deuce, expects to see when he gets home from work is his street jammed with fire engines and police cars. When he realizes that his apartment building is on fire, Nathaniel can only think of one thing: his pregnant dog, trapped inside. When firefighter Trey Donovan delivers Nathaniel's unharmed dog to him, Nathaniel is exceedingly grateful. After all, it isn't every day that he meets muscular, attractive rescue workers. Nathaniel manages to find out where Trey's station is with the idea of saying thank you and offering him a puppy, but discovers that he and Trey have something else between them that needs exploring. Trey, however, has responsibilities that could prove to make that exploration difficult. He has shift work to contend with. His seven-year-old daughter is a priority, plus he shares custody with his less-than-friendly ex-wife. Since Nathaniel is the new owner of one dog and six puppies, and doesn't even have a place to live, he isn't exactly in an ideal situation to explore a new relationship. Even if it is with a hot, handsome fireman.

Can Trey and Nathaniel find some common ground amid the yapping of puppies and Trey's complicated family life?

Messi averages a goal every 93.3 minutes for Barcelona in all competitions but, in the World Cup, his ratio is almost three times that number. In Russia, he has AAU-By-The-Numbers.
