Daphne Storm knows how to save lives. As a dedicated E.R. nurse at Wyoming Mercy Medical, there isn't much Daphne hasn't seen: sickness, broken bones, and hunting accidents. But when a little boy is admitted one dark night after barely surviving a vicious animal attack, Daphne's world is suddenly turned upside down. Whatever did this to him is a monster—a vicious creature threatening not just her town but the very fabric of morality, humanity itself—it is evil. And as Daphne holds the hand of the boy she and the doctors couldn't save, she sees a brief mental image of black fur and white fangs. Little does she know, she is playing right into the hands of fate— even more so when she finds herself irresistibly drawn to a man with raven-black hair, one of the strange, rough men who have invited themselves to her town. The blood moon prophecy unfolds. The power of the blood moon will turn Damons people mad, as the prophecy foretells. During its rise and fall his men must fight the urge to shift, the desire to turn wolf, the need to kill, but when one of the men goes crazy, escapes, and terrorizes Timber Springs, Damon must stop him at all costs. But the rogue wolf isn't after the people of Timber Springs. He only wants Daphne. He must be stopped, but no one knows how
